

SEMI-WEEKLY INTERIOR JOURNAL.

VOL. XVIII.

STANFORD, KY., FRIDAY, MAY 23, 1890.

NO. 24

ON THE BACK TRACK.

Interesting Notes Picked up Along The Way.

LAWRENCE, Wyo., May 17, '90.

DEAR FRIENDS.—Twenty-five miles out from Sacramento, we began to climb the Sierra Nevadas, and from thence to the top is the most interesting part of my route. Generally, where railroads run over a range of mountains, they follow a stream or a valley, which gradually leads up to a pass at the backbone of the range; but these could not be found here. So the road takes to the mountain-side and in the little niche cut there commences the ascent, curving in and out, crawling thro' short tunnels here and there where the projections are abrupt, rising higher and higher, rounding the sharpest curve at "Tape Horn" up and up it goes till the rocky, craggy canyon is thousands of feet below and I naturally draw back from the window with the thought of the awful consequences if the car should jump the track on one of these short curves. It is the dizziest height to which I've ever ascended in a railway car.

Reaching the top at Summit, 7,017 feet above sea-level, the most prominent feature presented is a continuous snow-bank, relic of the great blockade of last winter. Most of the road is covered with snow sheds, but where the blockade occurred the sheds had rotted down and the company had failed to replace them. That they will have them rebuilt by next winter goes without saying. The descent is gradual and without any striking features, except the deep snow, to Huachuca, Nev., which is itself 1,234, and then for 1,280 miles we run along at an altitude varying from that to $2,500 feet.

Reno, in the western part, is the only good-sized town in Nevada thru' which the Central Pacific passes, and there are 140 miles of it in the State. In fact the country is almost entirely desert, being arid land, covered in many places with the white stuff resembling a light fall of snow, and where this is thick not a vestige of vegetation exists. I don't believe there are a thousand acres of tillable and in sight of the railroad. In the eastern part I saw a mining camp of two and some timbered land, the only forests in sight. The northern strip of Utah which is traversed by the C. P. is quite an improvement on Nevada, which is undoubtedly the poorest State in the Union, sparsely settled and really ought never to have been admitted.

Passed over the Great American Desert, the most desolate of all the desolate sections of the West and along the northern end of the Great Salt Lake, a big inland sea, so salty and tempestuous along the western shore that persons bathing may almost sit upon the water. Only one living thing is found in its waters—a species of shrimp no larger than a mosquito.

The train stopped long enough to allow me to take in the town of Ogden, which is having somewhat of a boom just now. It is the liveliest place I've come across yet. Having already a population of 10,000 or 12,000, (but claiming 20,000), it is rapidly growing, and being situated in a fertile and well-watered valley, where five great railroads centre, will be a city some day. The people are making big preparations for the carnival of Box 11, to come off July 1st.

The crossing of the Wasatch Mountains, between Utah and Wyoming, was without anything worth mentioning except the Devil's Stile and Webber's Canyon. The slide is a curiosity in the shape of two perfectly straight rows of rock several feet apart, extending from near the top to the foot of the mountain, the space between as smooth as if the devil had been tobogganing there sure enough. Near Evanston, in Western Wyoming, one of the four good towns in the Territory, I saw the wreck of the Overland Flyer, the fast westbound train, running from Omaha to San Francisco in two and a half days. It was caused by running thro' a misplaced switch into freight cars on the siding, smashing up things generally, but strange to say killing no one except the engineer.

The Wasatch crossed we commenced to ascend to the backbone of the continent, which we will cross at Sherman, fifteen miles east of this place. Unlike the Denver & Rio Grande, the Union Pacific does not run over the Rocky Mountains proper, but crosses where they break off into high and rolling plains, and the ascent is so gradual that I could hardly realize on reaching Laramie that I was 7,150 feet up in the air. Laramie is a real nice place of 5,000 or 6,000 people, and business seems to be good. It has several manufacturers, among them rolling mills, flouring mills, glass works and soda works. The Territorial penitentiary is located here. A detracting feature is that the wind blows all the time, and in winter makes it extremely cold and disagreeable. I tried to find Judge Smythe, but no one could tell me where he boards since he broke up his housekeeping. His court here is now in session.

T. R. WALTON.

The Supreme Court has decided that Virginia must accept coupons for all tax on the special school tax and liquor license.

CRAB ORCHARD.

—Three lady guests arrived at the Springs Tuesday.

A Sunday-school will be organized at the Holmes school-house Sunday at 3 p.m.

Spine J. A. Cooppey has been invited to deliver a lecture at Friendship Sunday afternoon. Subject, "Moral Advice to the Coming Generation."

—So many from here went to the river fishing Saturday that had the spear put in his appearance there would have been barely enough available hands to extinguish his torch.

We erred in saying that the hog case was carried to quarterly court. It was carried to circuit court and the bond was $50 and $100 instead of $100 and $150 reported in last issue.

J. W. Miller, of Rockcastle, whose lamented death was chronicled in last week's Mt. Vernon Signal, was a cousin of Mr. J. T. McElroy, of this place, and a young man of much promise and promise.

—Perhaps many of your readers would be glad to know that we met Mrs. J. M. Bruce and J. T. Barnett at Ft. Worth, Texas. Bro. Coleman's health is not good and we think he ought to come back to Kentucky. He could perhaps do as well here and would certainly have better health. The Waynesburg church regards him as one of the best men they ever had pastor.

The farmers here are complaining

of want of rain, the continuous rains,

dry up the streams and make

it difficult to get a crop in.

We are glad to see our old friend Ben McGrath, "running" baggage on this division again. Ben is an old timer and is known throughout the country as

one of the jolliest and, and desirous

of his aversion to see, padding or carrying

anything that's sweet. He is a No. 1

railroad and popular with everyone.

Long may his round red, ruminous face

glow among the Kinsville Branch.

—We are glad to see our old friend

Ben McGrath, "running" baggage on this division again. Ben is an old timer and

is known throughout the country as

one of the jolliest and, and desirous

of his aversion to see, padding or carrying

anything that's sweet. He is a No. 1

railroad and popular with everyone.

Long may his round red, ruminous face

glow among the Kinsville Branch.

—That busy little Hutchinson, B. Marshall of Lantzville, was here this week raking in miles, pelt's w. Miss Sueie

Flem, of the Huldtide locality, after a pleasant visit to Misses Kate and Mary

Upton, has returned home. Mrs. Joe

Coffey, of Danville, was in town Saturday.

He says that prohibition is lessening

its grip in the capital of Boyle. Miss Ellen Shively, one of the prettiest of C. O.

bellies is visiting the family of Mr. Jim

White at Mt. Vernon. Mrs. Ellen Clifford, wife of the expert telegrapher, F.

L. Clifford, brought her two pretty children to see their grand-father Sunday.

Mr. Will Lee, formerly an old resident

here, but now of the Wrought Iron

Bangs Co., of St. Louis, stopped off here

several days this week to mingle with old chums and renew bygone friendships.

Miss Maggie Newland, of Stanford, is visiting her sister, Mrs. J. R.

Bailey. Mr. Harrison Baker, ex-sheriff

of Rockcastle, accompanied by his wife

paid a visit to friends here Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Hutchings and Mrs.

J. W. James were visiting relatives in Danville Wednesday.

Please call and settle at once. All accounts not paid by July 1st will be placed in the hands of an officer for collection. J. R. Bailey.

Mr. NASTY.—There will be a spelling contest at the school-house this Friday night. Mr. Eugene Cook has been employed by the trustees of the Willow

Grove school to teach their public school.

Miss Sallie Mock is on the sick list this week. Miss Mattie Crutchfield gave quite a nice entertainment to the young people the other night. Mrs. Logan

Dawson, who has been quite sick, is better. Misses Mamie and Willie Sallee, of Danville, are visiting Miss Roberta

Bridgert. Mr. and Mrs. Will Carter left

Monday for a visit to Louisville. Mr.

Chester Embanks, who has been studying medicine in Cincinnati, is spending his vacation at home. Miss Lou Taylor,

who has been visiting her aunt, Mrs.

Eugene Kelley, has returned to her home at Somerset. There will be a meeting of the trustees and patrons at the schoolhouse the 1st Saturday in June to elect a new trustee. Let us have a good attendance and take an interest in our public school. Messrs. Lynn Dawson and James Totten have built brick splendid streams of water on their premises. The scenery around the river is beautiful. Here too the river cliffs and climbing vines lend their assistance to enhance the beauty and loveliness of the scene, forming many cozy nooks and inviting retreats for friends and lovers, tired of rowing or boating on the mossy banks. We have several fine looking bachelors in the neighborhood. The question is, why is it that they have never married? Let us hear from them on the subject.

Taking advantage of a recent decision of the courts an enterprising agent of a liquor house opened up an "original package" shop at Topeka, Kas., where he quickly sold a car-load of beer in cases containing 24 bottles each.

WAVESBURG.

WAYNESBURG.

A new-comer at Mrs. M. B. Mitchell's Haven't learned the sex.

A studio near Kings Mountain has delayed all trains several hours.

Have just learned that Wyatt Walker shot and killed James Delaney on the 18th near Bee Lick, in Pulaski county. An old grudge is said to be the cause.

George D. Lane and Miss Amanda Singletary were married at Mr. P. Singleton's on the 19th. This is George's second venture and they have three children to begin with.

Mr. D. L. Green, president of the Ohio Medicine Company, of Covington, was here inquiring after relatives. He is the finest looking fellow I have seen yet and perhaps the wealthiest of the name.

—Perhaps many of your readers would be glad to know that we met Mrs. J. M.

Bruce and J. T. Barnett at Ft. Worth, Texas. Bro. Coleman's

health is not good and we think he ought to come back to Kentucky. He could perhaps do as well here and would certainly have better health. The Waynesburg church regards him as one of the best men they ever had pastor.

The farmers here are complaining

of want of rain, the continuous rains,

dry up the streams and make

it difficult to get a crop in.

We are glad to see our old friend

Ben McGrath, "running" baggage on this

division again. Ben is an old timer and

is known throughout the country as

one of the jolliest and, and desirous

of his aversion to see, padding or carrying

anything that's sweet. He is a No. 1

railroad and popular with everyone.

Long may his round red, ruminous face

glow among the Kinsville Branch.

—That busy little Hutchinson

SEMI-WEEKLY INTERIOR JOURNAL

STANFORD, KY., - MAY 23 1890

W. P. WALTON.

SIX PAGES.

DEMOCRATIC TICKET.

For County Judge, THOMAS W. VARNON
County Attorney, JOSEPH B. PAXTON;
County Clerk, GEORGE B. COOTER;
Sheriff, J. N. MCENELLY;
Jailer, SAMUEL M. OWENS;
Assessor, E. D. KENNEDY;
Sup't of Common Schools, W. F. MCLARY;
Surveyor, HARRY A. EVANS;
Coroner, ARCH CARSON.

LANGLEY, the Johnson county member of the Legislature, seems to be in the middle of a pretty bad tax. He is accused of withdrawing a bill from the governor to permit his county and others to vote aid to the Ohio and Big Sandy railroad without authority and then surreptitiously returning it. Langley's seems to have withdrawn the bill to pull the wool over the eyes of his republican constituents, who were very much opposed to its passage, but returned it to the governor's desk in secret manner, when he had been bribed with $1,000 to do so. Of course he denies any crookedness in the matter, but his actions belie his words. The whole thing was given away by the governor's communication to the Legislature informing them of the withdrawal of the bill and its strange return. Langley, it will be remembered, is the same flip young fellow against whom a pretty school teacher got a verdict for slander and the same who was so unmercifully excoriated by Attorney General Hardin for a piece of malicious impertinence that he worked through the Legislature in order to get even with Gen. Hardin, who was counsel for the young woman. It is a wonder that Langley has not come to the end of his rope sooner than he has.

If there is any mean advantage that the party in power will not take to increase its hold on the public treasury, it has never been brought to light. They are still misusing democrats in the House and giving their places to republicans, who have no semblance of claim to them. In the case of McBuford vs. Turpin, of the 4th Alabama district, Turpin's majority, as certified by the Secretary of State of Alabama, was 13,153. The committee "after weighing all the evidence in the case," has transformed this into a majority of 4,481 for McBuford, the contestant. This seems to cap the climax of the outrageous rape of seats which the people will set their seal of condemnation on this fall.

The convention to nominate a candidate for clerk of the Court of Appeals promises to be quite an exciting one. It is a very fat plum and worth the strenuous efforts being made to secure it. As far as the returns have been received the first instruction now stands: Madden, 179; Longmoor, 145; Adams, 127; Martin, 122; Poore, 78; Van Zant, 31; French, 13; Brinkley, 13. On the second instruction Martin has 44; Adams 42; Longmoor, 37; Madden, 28; Poore, 22; Van Zant, 2. At present it is anybody's race, with the prospect that a combination will secure it as before.

RICHARD VAUX was elected to succeed Mr. Randal, Tuesday, receiving 8,591 votes to his prohibition opponent's 47. The republicans were not foolhardy enough to nominate a candidate. The platform on which Mr. Vaux was elected was a clear tariff reform expression, quite remarkable, since Mr. Randal was such a pronounced protectionist. In describing Mr. Vaux the Courier-Journal says he was a Philadelphia lawyer, when that meant the superlative of all human knowledge.

The republicans in Congress refused to adopt the amendment to the tariff bill to remove all internal revenue taxation from tobacco, notwithstanding the platform specifically promised it. The party of promises continues to demonstrate its certainty to break them whenever an opportunity offers. It is strange how sensible people can be humbugged by such an aggregation of hypocrisy, dishonesty and deceit.

It begins to look very much like old General Palmer will be the next U. S. Senator from Illinois. There is a strong sentiment in favor of him as shown by the fact that out of 42 democratic county conventions that have been held this spring 39 have enthusiastically declared for him and agree that he should be nominated in State convention, so that the Legislature may be elected on that issue.

Some of the newspapers are saying that the Press Association meeting at Winchester has been postponed till the 24th. Judge Beckner, chairman of the executive committee, says the date is the 25th. Our contemporaries will take notice and govern themselves accordingly.

STATISTICIANS have just succeeded in getting the data to show that during last year 3,507 murders and homicides were committed in this country. And yet there were in all but 98 hangings. Murder is therefore about the safest crime a man can commit.

The Louisville Commercial, which is edited by Col. Kelly, former pension explorer, is shortly to wed Miss Dorothy, agent for Kentucky, is opposed to the Tennan, an English lady, though it was Morrill service pension bill. The gift of a pension to a few old men survivors of former wars creates no obligation on the government it thinks to put a million able bodied men, thousands of whom are in prosperous circumstances, on its pay rolls. For any soldier wounded or disabled a liberal pension is provided, for those since incapacitated, well-conducted and comfortable soldiers' homes are provided. No nation on earth ever cared for its army better than the government of the United States cared for the union soldiers. No nation on earth has ever been so liberal in granting pensions, or has granted such liberal pensions to its disabled soldiers, or has done so much for the widows and orphans of those who were slain. It is this excessive liberality of the government to the soldiers which has caused the pension agents, deserters and cattle dealers to grow bolder and bolder in their demands, which have usually been met by an cowardly Congress willing to vote the people's money recklessly away to appear the cry and secure the soldier vote.

The McKinley tariff juggle, designed to pay at the public expense the debt the republican party incurred during the last campaign in the shape of fat fried out of those who were peculiarly interested in the perpetuation of war taxes in time of peace, was rushed through the House Wednesday after less than two weeks debate. The vote stood 162 to 142 against, only two republicans, Coleman, of Louisiana, and Featherstone, of Arkansas, daring to vote against the taxation of the many for the benefit of the few. The bill is a great outrage.

Col. W. H. Yost, a giant both in physical and mental development, will occupy a seat on the Superior Court bench after the August election. The primary conventions have settled the question as to his nomination, which of course is equivalent to an election. The next highest court in the State will be decidedly strengthened by the advent of the giant from Mulholland.

SENATOR CARLISLE will move to the other end of the capitol to-day. It is the rule to give new members the back seats, but no rule that that body can make will keep Mr. Carlisle from forging to the front on every proposition of importance. By common consent he steps into the leadership of his party in the Upper house of Congress.

EVERY other man you meet in Mr. Carlisle's district is a candidate for his late seat in Congress and the scramble for it will be the hottest ever made. The election will occur about a month from now.

It is said that the L. & N. is preparing sidetrack for 250 sleeping cars at Mid-dishoro, which will come loaded with buyers from New England. The public sale begins on the 26th.

NEWS CONDENSED

—Of a family of 16 near Taylorstown, Pa., 13 have died of diphtheria.

—The regulation $1,000,000 worth of lots was sold at Ashland the first day.

—W. R. Decker has been appointed postmaster at Clyde, Wayne county.

—Thos. Adams killed Edward Steers, against whom he had a grudge, in Kenton county.

—Senator Blackburn introduced a bill to erect a $100,000 public building at Winchester.

—Sherman Aubrey, who killed his cousin Ira, in Hardin, last winter, was given a life sentence.

—Mr. Lucien M. Adkins, of the Times fore, was elected secretary of the Louisville Commercial Club.

—The government pays annually to the railroads the sum of nearly $40,000 for carrying the mails.

—Ex-Senator Sawyer, of Alabama, now earns his daily bread as a 2d-class clerk in the War Department at Washington.

—Ex-Senator Charles W. Jones, of Florida, was adjudged insane and committed to St. Joseph's Retreat at Detroit Michigan.

—The court of levy for Fayette fixed the salary of its county judge at $1,500, county attorney at $900 and school commissioner at $1,000.

—The Supreme Court decides that Green River Island, in the Ohio, containing about 2,000 acres, belongs to Kentucky. Indiana sued for it.

—Jas. Whitehead, of Louisville, commenced to bleed from the nose last week and nothing being able to stop it, bled in three hours from loss of blood.

—The color line is being drawn in the G. A. R. posts at Louisville and a big split and quarrel is raging in the camps. The poor negro is good only to vote.

—The Senate passed a bill to appropriate $100,000 for a public building at Paris, Ky., and another for $300,000 to erect a statue of Gen. Grant at Washington.

—Senator Blair has introduced a resolution proposing to amend the constitution so as to prohibit the United States or any of the States from authorizing the establishment of a lottery.

—Senator Beck's will is dated April 26, 1856, and leaves all his property to his wife during her lifetime and after her death it goes to his children. Mrs. Beck died several years ago, but the senator never changed his will. The estate is worth about $300,000.

—It is said that Henry M. Starkey, the editor of Col. Kelly, former pension explorer, is shortly to wed Miss Dorothy, agent for Kentucky, is opposed to the Tennan, an English lady, though it was Morrill service pension bill. The gift of a pension to a few old men survivors of former wars creates no obligation on the government it thinks to put a million able bodied men, thousands of whom are in prosperous circumstances, on its pay rolls. For any soldier wounded or disabled a liberal pension is provided, for those since incapacitated, well-conducted and comfortable soldiers' homes are provided. No nation on earth ever cared for its army better than the government of the United States cared for the union soldiers. No nation on earth has ever been so liberal in granting pensions, or has granted such liberal pensions to its disabled soldiers, or has done so much for the widows and orphans of those who were slain. It is this excessive liberality of the government to the soldiers which has caused the pension agents, deserters and cattle dealers to grow bolder and bolder in their demands, which have usually been met by an cowardly Congress willing to vote the people's money recklessly away to appear the cry and secure the soldier vote.

—A horse pulling the delivery wagon of Mrs. A. J. Card, at Willimawburg, ran over Nellie Bush, a little four-year old child of A. Bush, a grocery merchant. The child is not yet dead, but the doctors say there is no hope of her recovery.

—Mr. Uliss, of Georgia, has a crisp way of putting things. He cover a deal of ground in the remark that the McKinley tariff bill is class legislation in behalf of a class of men who are thus being paid back out of the public pocket their contributions to a campaign fund.

—A bill has been reported to the Senate by the judiciary committee subjecting imported liquors to the laws of the several States. It is designed to prevent "original package" importation and sale under the late supreme court decision.

—Ex-Congressman J. Hale Sypher, of Louisiana, now practicing law in Washington City, charges that Russell B. Harrison has been engaged by the Louisiana Lottery Company to represent it in Washington at a salary of $25,000 a year.

—Robert Hopkins, a Louisville convict, stabbed John Smith, a prisoner from Harrison county, to death in the Frankfort penitentiary. An order to search all the convicts for knives resulted in the collection of fully half a bushel of dangerous weapons.

—A freight train struck John Myers and W. W. Teasley, two drunken men who were sitting near the track of the L. & N. not far from Jellico. Teasley was badly hurt, being mashed and bruised all over the body, and cannot live. Myers escaped with slight injury.

—Some young men and their sweethearts got on two hand cars on the Richmond, Irvine & Beattyville road Sunday and when they started down grade jumped off in time to save themselves. The cars went on and demolished a bridge at Marble Creek 227 feet high. The damage is $15,000 and it will take a month to repair it.

—A few days ago gunnery officers engaged in practice with the heliograph in the Department of Arizona flashed a message between two mountain tops, a distance of 125 miles. The message was again passed to another station 90 miles distant, thus covering 215 miles with a single intervening station.

—The Farmers' Alliance of Texas is in trouble. In 1887 the leaders organized at Dallas an exchange, with capital of half a million, the stock being taken by subordinate lodges. It lasted about two years, during which time, it is alleged, nearly a quarter of a million of dollars was squandered, with nothing to show for it.

—The remains of the late President James A. Garfield were quietly removed from the public vault in Lake View Cemetery to the crypt in the Garfield monument at Cleveland shortly after midnight Monday. The secret removal of the remains was in accordance with the wishes of Mrs. Garfield, who was opposed to any demonstration or show.

MT. VERNON, ROCKCASTLE COUNTY.

—A two-mile track is being laid at Pine Hill to Skaggs Creek coal fields.

—The Rockcastle democrats instructed for M. F. Brinkley for clerk of the Court of Appeals.

—A gay crowd of young people went in wagons [from here] last Saturday to Round Stone on a fishing excursion.

—Mr. G. Bainsey, who has been doing business at Wilder, this county, has closed out on account of debts and slow collections.

—Mrs. Polly Hiatt while walking over the floor ran a large darning needle into her foot. Two pieces of it were removed by the doctors.

—Messrs. William and George Gentry have bought the 1,700 acre tract of timber and coal lands just south of town from Judge E. E. Evans for $12,000.

—The fall that the servant had in the stable of Dave Poynter, which was reported last week, was not from the effect of gravitation, as was stated, but a four months fetus, found under a flat stone in the stable yesterday morning explains the situation.

—The Jims seem to be in the majority in the dispatcher's office at Rowland. There is the genial chief, Jim Florence, the rushing assistant, Jim Clifford, and the old reliable Jim Mudd, the 2d trick man. None of them are "Jim Crows," either, but all are Jim Dandies for hard work and plenty of it, which they transact with dispatch and accuracy.

—Mr. John Albright, who has been sick for quite a time, was in town Wednesday. S. W. Paris is searching for silver mines near Pineview. Mrs. Rosalind Neshitt has received her certificate from the State superintendent of public schools. Mr. B. P. Martin and family, of Lily, were visiting here during the week. Mr. John Welch was in from Louisville Sunday and returned Monday. Col. J. B. Fish left Tuesday for Hot Springs and Oklahoma. Mrs. S. W. Paris has returned from Middlesboro bringing baby Denton with her. D. N. Williams went to Frankfort yesterday for the purpose of getting a charter put through the legislature for the Mt. Vernon and Somerset turnpike company.

—While waiting at the depot for the 11 o'clock passenger train Tuesday morning, the passengers were startled by two pistol shots and the cry that D. P. Beethum was shot. Jim Baker, who lives at Broadhead, had come down that morning on the local and was to return home at 11. He had been drinking and took a notion to fire his pistol off on the depot

A RECOGNIZED FACT,

That we are leaders in Novelties, pioneers in Progressive Methods and always lowest in Prices. Keep posted as to what we are doing; if not

You Will Miss

Some of the greatest bargains of your life. Rare inducements in every department of Dry Goods, Clothing, Shoes, Hats, Carpets, Matting, &c. Seaside goods cheaper than ever before.

GREAT REDUCTIONS

In Geut's Furnishing Goods this week.

Men's Outing Flannel Shirts 75c, worth 65c; Men's Flannel Shirts 75c, worth $1; Men's all wool silk mixed Flannel Shirts $1.25 and $1.50, worth $2 and $2.50. Men's unlaunched Shirts re-enforced front and back at 75c, worth 75c; Men's extra fine unlaunched Shirts in plain and plaited bosom at 75c, worth $1; 90c worth $1.25; Men's fancy Pique Shirts in all the leading styles at $1.25, worth from $1.50 to $2; Men's Undershirts 25c worth $2; Men's Drilled Drawers at 25c, worth 20c; Men's genuine French Balbriggan Underwear in cream and pin striped at $1 a Suit, worth $1.50; Men's superfine Underwear in fancy stripes and plaid at $1.50 a Suit, worth $2; Men's Lisle Thread Underwear $1.90 a Suit, worth $3. All our handsome line of Boys' Waists from 25c upwards. Compare our prices with others then come and be convinced.

THE LOUISVILLE STORE

Main Street, Stanford,

M. SALINGER, MANAGER.

.....GO TO.....

A. A. WARRENS

"MODEL GROCERY"

For Garden Hoes, Rakes, Spading Forks

And Spades.

Northern Seed Irish Potatoes, Red & White Onion Sets, Peas and Beans in bulk.

Also a full stock of Landreth's, D. M. Feny & Co.'s and Crossman's Garden Seeds in papers.

MARK HARDIN

—Dealer In—

Groceries, Hardware, Queensware, Tinware, GLASSWARE, &c.

All Goods First-Class and Sold at the Lowest Living Prices.

SPRING CLOTHING.

Our Goods are Now All In

And We Have

AN ELEGANT ASSORTMENT

Men's, Boys' and Children's Suits, Light and Dark Colors, Sacks and Frocks; also large line of Pants.

STAGG & McROBERTS.

HIGGINS & M'KINNEY

Are headquarters for

Hardware, Groceries, Stoves, Salt, Lime, &c.

Plows! Plows! Buy the Oliver Chil or Hamilton Steel Plow and you will make no mistake. No plow is equal to those; no plow ever had the run that the Oliver has. Every plow warranted to do good work, or no sale. Ask your neighbor.

BRYANT & STRATTON BUSINESS COLLEGE

Book Keeping, Short Hand, Telegraphy, &c. Write for Catalogue and full information.

LOUISVILLE, KY.

ISABEL;

(—) on —

From Shop to Mansion.

The Romantic Story of a Dress Maker's Rise in Life.

By MRS. F. M. HOWARD.

[Copyrighted, 1890.]

And Katy's low laugh rang out again as she replied: "My dear Myrtle, Mrs. Montooth, this hughty dame who doesn't associate with the boisterous classes, was once my little girl. She began by washing pots and kettles. Until she was wed and quick I promoted her to the care of the mama closet holding room after a time, where she attracted the admiration of every裁缝's clerk, who married her. Her family were miserably poor, and I felt sorry for the girl, and did all I could to help her, but she was always proud and vain, and, after her marriage, she lost loose from her family entirely, and I do not suppose she would recognize one of her own sisters now."

"But how did Mr. Montooth get his wealth?" asked Mrs. Hervey, after lifting her hands and exclaiming in her astonishment at the story.

"He had a faculty for successful speculation, not always strictly honorable, either," I fear," replied Aunt Katy, "and hand struck oil in the very bottom of the oil cistern, and made a fortune in a hurry, after which they removed to New York and Holly Montooth set up for a fashionista lady."

"An unenviable such!" declared Mrs. Hervey indignantly; "so this is the foundation of her extreme grandeur?"

"Depend upon it, no such thing."

Your family there you can see."

Without good reason to suppose so."

You may find it wiser not to tell the farther end."

By some pell-mell version."

Quoted Aunt Katy, smiling. "Saxie could not have described our American aristocracy better and it looks to me extremely well, in a country where fortunes are being made and lost every day, to be made in such respects of ultra society. I always read it as a positive symptom that at some time the person who has such a horror of what the world has seen has been ennobled by it."

"What a dreadful thought to be born without common sense," said Mrs. Hervey; "but, my, my, I shall be ashamed to look Mrs. Fairweather or the like."

"I would suggest to you, now that Mrs. Montooth has made such a display of the matter that it can't fail to cause remark," resumed Aunt Katy, "that you and other of her friends, whose position is scarcely irreverentable, take sound pains to introduce us. I stand by her."

"That we will," replied Mrs. Hervey. "I am positive Mrs. Colgate is to bring with her at just as I do, and I am sure there is no real refusal to follow her lead."

Mrs. Montooth's stay at the Hervey's was not a long one; Aunt Katy carelessly dropped a remark which she wed the frank date that in spite of her diamonds and velvet her reign as little girl in the family was not forgotten, and she took her departure in a half hour.

"I'm so glad," said Mrs. Hervey, "for I couldn't have come to Miss Blyden's with out her, and I should not have brought her in contact with Mrs. Fairweather or for the world."

Mrs. Durand's gathering was a complete success so far as Isabel's social appearance was concerned, it was her first formal entrance into Philadelphia society, and something of a test of her position in the future, and she was beautifully dressed in white, and before leaving home Mr. Falconer had presented her with a set of pearls, exquisitely mounted, which added the finishing touch to her already elegant costume.

Society, as a rule, is very much like a double flock of sheep who follow their leader submissively over the way without question, and as Mrs. Colgate He-Long, aided by Mrs. Dwight and Mrs. Hervey, introduced her effusively as "My friend, Mrs. Falconer," society at once ignored the rumors that had heard, and adopted her unanimously and heartily.

"Mr. Falconer" They were sitting in the home room the evening after the party, and Isabel was rocking Grace, robed in her daintily embroidered night dress, and the child had fallen asleep with the touch of a loving hand smoothing her soft hair, as the young step mother looked thoughtfully upon her.

It was a pleasant picture, and Mr. Falconer's eye rested gratefully upon it, as he replied: "What is it, Isabel?"

"I have been thinking of Little Ford today," she said, gently. "I feel sure that if she had means to have proper medical attendance her lameness might be cured. You do not know how sweet and good she is," and she looked in his face wistfully. "She was all that kept me from growing hard and wicked there."

"Then I own her a debt of gratitude," he said kindly. "I think there is a request valid under that wistful look," he resumed, smiling, "and I hope you are not going to be modest and fear to make it known."

"I have been thinking to-day that, if you were willing, I should be so glad to have her come and live with me," she replied. "Grace is old enough to begin learning, under a wise governess, who would not overtax her, and Little would be such a gentle, patient teacher, as well as a companion for me. Teaching was her chosen vocation, but she was obliged to give it up on account of her lameness."

"A capital plan," replied Mr. Falconer, heartily. "I am glad you have mentioned it."

"Little is proud, as well as poor," resumed Isabel; "and while she could not afford to come independently, she would not be willing to accept what we would so gladly give her unless she could feel as if she were earning it in some way."

"An honorable feeling," said Mr. Falconer, warmly. "And I leave it to your good taste to offer such inducements in such a manner as you think best."

"I did not look for such hearty co-operation in my plan," and Isabel looked into his kindly face with gratuity. "I will write to Little to-morrow."

"I do hope, my dear wife, that you will not doubt my readiness to aid you in any plan you may wish to make for the benefit of those who have befriended you," he said, gravely and earnestly.

"Surely, what I have is yours, also, and it is a pleasure to let to know your wishes, that I may gratify them. But I am not short, 'me nance' to you, with all my worldly goods!" he added, more playfully.

She looked up at him. Her dark eyes filled with tears. "You are too kind to me, and I do not feel as if I had any right to the endowment not alone of your goods, but of the unvarying kindness you are ever showing me, when I recognize the fact that I can not meet it with a love which a wife should give; the sweet love which makes it easy for her to ask and receive her husband's gifts."

"My dear Isabel," he replied, gravely, "I do not wish to hasten you in the least, but I will confess that it will be a happy hour when you can say, truthfully and from your heart: 'I have you,' but do not, I beg, refuse me the pleasure of doing for you and of loving you in the meantime. I assure you it is a privilege."

"Do for me and with me as you will," she cried, with deep emotion, "only do not forget taking me to your home. It would break my heart had I reason to fear that you rejected our marriage. I am so happy here," and she looked down on the sweet face of the child, and the bright tears ran down her cheeks as I stopped on the fair, unconscious bed."

"Have no fears, Isabel," he replied, "your love for the child would alone induce me to keep her safe. You let her and make my name a happy one; so dry your tears, dear wife, and let us yet be as we would have it."

"How little one can tell what a day may bring forth, the letter to Little was never written, for just as Isabel had seated herself at the task, Mr. Falconer came in with a telegram from her aunt, announcing the death of John Harmon, and asking her to come at once."

"Poor Annie," she said, with a sigh, "it is ready to happen, but it will not be such a shock to her, for the loyal him, and I do not suppose she would recognize one of her own sisters now."

"But how did Mr. Montooth get his wealth?" asked Mrs. Hervey, after lifting her hands and exclaiming in her astonishment at the story.

"He had a faculty for successful speculation, not always strictly honorable, either," I fear," replied Aunt Katy, "and hand struck oil in the very bottom of the oil cistern, and made a fortune in a hurry, after which they removed to New York and Holly Montooth set up for a fashionista lady."

"An unenviable such!" declared Mrs. Hervey indignantly; "so this is the foundation of her extreme grandeur?"

"Depend upon it, no such thing."

Your family there you can see."

Without good reason to suppose so."

You may find it wiser not to tell the farther end."

By some pell-mell version."

Quoted Aunt Katy, smiling. "Saxie could not have described our American aristocracy better and it looks to me extremely well, in a country where fortunes are being made and lost every day, to be made in such respects of ultra society. I always read it as a positive symptom that at some time the person who has such a horror of what the world has seen has been ennobled by it."

"What a dreadful thought to be born without common sense," said Mrs. Hervey; "but, my, my, I shall be ashamed to look Mrs. Fairweather or the like."

"I would suggest to you, now that Mrs. Montooth has made such a display of the matter that it can't fail to cause remark," resumed Aunt Katy, "that you and other of her friends, whose position is scarcely irreverentable, take sound pains to introduce us. I stand by her."

"That we will," replied Mrs. Hervey. "I am positive Mrs. Colgate is to bring with her at just as I do, and I am sure there is no real refusal to follow her lead."

Mrs. Montooth's stay at the Hervey's was not a long one; Aunt Katy carelessly dropped a remark which she wed the frank date that in spite of her diamonds and velvet her reign as little girl in the family was not forgotten, and she took her departure in a half hour.

"I'm so glad," said Mrs. Hervey, "for I couldn't have come to Miss Blyden's with out her, and I should not have brought her in contact with Mrs. Fairweather or for the world."

Mrs. Durand's gathering was a complete success so far as Isabel's social appearance was concerned, it was her first formal entrance into Philadelphia society, and something of a test of her position in the future, and she was beautifully dressed in white, and before leaving home Mr. Falconer had presented her with a set of pearls, exquisitely mounted, which added the finishing touch to her already elegant costume.

Society, as a rule, is very much like a double flock of sheep who follow their leader submissively over the way without question, and as Mrs. Colgate He-Long, aided by Mrs. Dwight and Mrs. Hervey, introduced her effusively as "My friend, Mrs. Falconer," society at once ignored the rumors that had heard, and adopted her unanimously and heartily.

"Mr. Falconer" They were sitting in the home room the evening after the party, and Isabel was rocking Grace, robed in her daintily embroidered night dress, and the child had fallen asleep with the touch of a loving hand smoothing her soft hair, as the young step mother looked thoughtfully upon her.

It was a pleasant picture, and Mr. Falconer's eye rested gratefully upon it, as he replied: "What is it, Isabel?"

"I have been thinking of Little Ford today," she said, gently. "I feel sure that if she had means to have proper medical attendance her lameness might be cured. You do not know how sweet and good she is," and she looked in his face wistfully. "She was all that kept me from growing hard and wicked there."

"Then I own her a debt of gratitude," he said kindly. "I think there is a request valid under that wistful look," he resumed, smiling, "and I hope you are not going to be modest and fear to make it known."

"I have been thinking to-day that, if you were willing, I should be so glad to have her come and live with me," she replied. "Grace is old enough to begin learning, under a wise governess, who would not overtax her, and Little would be such a gentle, patient teacher, as well as a companion for me. Teaching was her chosen vocation, but she was obliged to give it up on account of her lameness."

"A capital plan," replied Mr. Falconer, heartily. "I am glad you have mentioned it."

"Little is proud, as well as poor," resumed Isabel; "and while she could not afford to come independently, she would not be willing to accept what we would so gladly give her unless she could feel as if she were earning it in some way."

"An honorable feeling," said Mr. Falconer, warmly. "And I leave it to your good taste to offer such inducements in such a manner as you think best."

"I did not look for such hearty co-operation in my plan," and Isabel looked into his kindly face with gratuity. "I will write to Little to-morrow."

"I do hope, my dear wife, that you will not doubt my readiness to aid you in any plan you may wish to make for the benefit of those who have befriended you," he said, gravely and earnestly.

"Surely, what I have is yours, also, and it is a pleasure to let to know your wishes, that I may gratify them. But I am not short, 'me nance' to you, with all my worldly goods!" he added, more playfully.

She looked up at him. Her dark eyes filled with tears. "You are too kind to me, and I do not feel as if I had any right to the enowment not alone of your goods, but of the unvarying kindness you are ever showing me, when I recognize the fact that I can not meet it with a love which a wife should give; the sweet love which makes it easy for her to ask and receive her husband's gifts."

CHAPTER VII.

John Harmon was laid in a dimmed grave, and the tears which were shed were more for the "might have been" and for the wasted life so suddenly brought to a close than for sorrow that he had gone. Indeed, a brighter atmosphere was even pervading the house, as the fact became more tangible that no more blows or curses were to be dealt out there, and the children began to look brighter, and lose their cowed, scared look, and all planned and looked forward to the future, as if a great black cloud had rolled off the horizon. As indeed there had. Wasn't that any man should so conduct himself that the best and kindest thing he can do for his family is to die and free them from his presence?

"I don't know as I can, child," replied Mrs. Harmon. "This has come so sudden like it seems to me, and there is no time for anything to be done."

"Isn't Uncle John had any business papers? Perhaps there are received bills or unsettled accounts in the old secretary. Had I not better look?"

"Perhaps so. I'll leave it all with you, child; some way I have neither heart nor courage to do any thing to-night," said the widow wearily.

"Isabel rose and, going to the old desk, drew open from a drawer a bundle of papers, unpaid bills, contracts for labor and unimportant papers, and a long official envelope, which she eagerly opened.

"Uncle John had a fortune," said Isabel, "Are you sure, child?" Mrs. Harmon's voice trembled with eager hope. "Can it be possible?"

It was possible, a girl reasoning man had attacked John Harmon's old desk when he was immensely plump, and had worked upon him unmercifully, partly from sense of Justice and partly from a very natural desire to rid rid of the man's persistsence, he had taken a peck of a thousand dollars.

He had left remnant of the unrepresented provision as soon as he had made it, and deposited the money in the old desk without a word.

"Oh, Isabel, what a wonderful Providence!" cried Mrs. Harmon, as she read the paper and took in the welcome certainty. Her anxiety was now gone, and her eyes began to sparkle with the rays of a new hope. "This will pay every debt and leave quite a large sum besides. I can plan now that there seems to be something to do."

"Oh, my, dear auntie, you have plenty to plan with," said Isabel, joyfully. "I have the very best husband in the world, and I have come prepared to repay you for a little of the love and care you have given me from infancy. All there is for you to do is to make up your mind what course you wish to pursue, and the means shall not be wanting."

"Have you, then, married a man who is able to allow you to do this?" said Mrs. Harmon, looking into Isabel's glad eyes with surprise.

"Not only able, but willing, auntie," and she repeated her conversation with Mr. Falconer before starting, and named the large sum he had given her.

"Isabel, child, I ought not to take it, indeed I ought not," cried the widow with emotion; "your generosity forces me to tell you a secret, which I have never thought to divulge until now."

"A secret?" said Isabel, surprised in her turn.

"Yes, a secret. I ought not to take your money, dear child, for really you are not related to me, and I have no claim on you for such liberality."

"Not related to you?" echoed Isabel. "Auntie Harmon, what do you mean?"

"Just what I say, Isabel," replied Mrs. Harmon. "I have never told you the story of your parentage, fearing it would make you uneasy, and now my interest is relieved."

"You resemble your father," said Mrs. Harmon, rasing her chin and looking in her face, "in the eyes and nature of your year in them; she was very beautiful woman, but your father was plain. Though yet so eager and anxious to join his and your mother's strength. It is probably that he was killed in the first battles of the war, and that his efforts to his people deserved the punishment of the times for I have never heard a word from any of them."

"It may be none of them viewed the fortunes of war," said Isabel, thoughtfully. "I have no relatives to know if my father is living, though it hardly seems probable. The very possibility thrills her through and through."

"Want to know more about it?" said Mrs. Harmon, contrived to keep the secret for you," said Mrs. Stamford, turning the precious talisman over and over in her fingers, as she recited the story of her birth, and Mrs. Stamford had received it as a very peasant relic, passing away with the widow girl side of the story completely.

"Very quiet and uneventful," said Harvey, "and I, of course, will be glad to find out if the Carringtons are still living."

"I presume so," replied Isabel, pensive. "I know no relatives to know if my father is living, though it hardly seems probable. The very possibility thrills her through and through."

"Want to know more about it?" said Mrs. Stamford, turning the precious talisman over and over in her fingers, as she recited the story of her birth, and Mrs. Stamford had received it as a very peasant relic, passing away with the widow girl side of the story completely.

"Want to know more about it?" said Mrs. Stamford, turning the precious talisman over and over in her fingers, as she recited the story of her birth, and Mrs. Stamford had received it as a very peasant relic, passing away with the widow girl side of the story completely.

"Want to know more about it?" said Mrs. Stamford, turning the precious talisman over and over in her fingers, as she recited the story of her birth, and Mrs. Stamford had received it as a very peasant relic, passing away with the widow girl side of the story completely.

"Want to know more about it?" said Mrs. Stamford, turning the precious talisman over and over in her fingers, as she recited the story of her birth, and Mrs. Stamford had received it as a very peasant relic, passing away with the widow girl side of the story completely.

"Want to know more about it?" said Mrs. Stamford, turning the precious talisman over and over in her fingers, as she recited the story of her birth, and Mrs. Stamford had received it

STANFORD, KY., . . . MAY 23, 1890

E.C. WALTON, Bus. Manager

MEANS BUSINESS.

LANDRETT'S Garden Seeds, fresh and

A. R. Penny.

WATCHES and jewelry repaired and warranted. A. R. Penny.

The best place to buy drugs, patent medicines and toilet articles is at A. R.

Penny's.

Buy your school books, ink, tablets,

paper, pencils and school supplies of all kinds from A. R. Penny.

PERSONAL POINTS.

Mr. A. A. McKinney is down with a malarial attack.

Mr. J. H. Morris, of Hardin county

is visiting his friend, J. P. Crow.

Mrs. J. C. Florence went to Louisville Tuesday to visit friends.

Messrs. J. M. Hall and S. M. Rivers

attended the sale of lots at Somerset.

Mr. Jas. P. Bush, of Stanford, was here several days last week.—Winchester Sun.

Albert Martin, son of Alex Martin,

is down with the typhoid pneumonia

and not expected to recover.

Mrs. S. C. Thierhardt is attending the General Conference at St. Louis.—Mil-tersburg Cor., Paris Kentuckian.

Capt. J. W. Cadieux is now running

one of the locals to Lebanon Junction

and has moved his family there.

Mrs. J. E. Evans and sons, Robert and Maurice, and Mrs. Benben Williams

are visiting relatives and friends in Danville.

Miss NANCY ELIZABETH CAMPBELL came down

from Rockcastle Springs, yesterday, and is the guest of her uncle, Mr. J. S.

Hughes.

W. A. WALLACE, of Goshen, traveling agent for White's Chicken Cholera Cure,

was here Wednesday establishing agency for its sale.

Capt. J. F. M. Kinney being unable to leave his work at present to join his wife,

that handsome and talented lady

returned to Birmingham yesterday morning.

Capt. V. M. Hill has been chosen

Chief of Police at Middleboro at $500 a year and fees. The captain belongs to a noted detective force and knows what is expected of him.

Messrs. T. P. Hill, P. M. McRoberts,

W. H. Miller and John S. Hawley, Jr.

went to Frankfort Tuesday to argue the case of Baumhamer vs. Portman, which has at last been submitted.

Miss Belle Cook, of Hustonville, is with her sister, Mrs. G. B. Cooper, who still remains quite sick. Mrs. H. E. Can-nitz, also of Hustonville, spent Wednesday and yesterday with Mrs. Cooper.

Mrs. L. L. StClair, of Columbus, Ga.,

arrived Tuesday to make her home with her daughter, Mrs. Dr. Steele Bailey.

Mrs. John Jenkins, of Rome, Ga., ac-compañied her and is also the guest of Mrs. Bailey.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. McRoberts, Mr.

Harry S. Wood, of Maysville, and Miss

Lucy Tate, Mr. G. E. Penny and Miss

Emma Sontay attended the banquet

given the Kentucky Pharmaceutical Association, in session at Richmond, last evening.

The commencement exercises of The

Augusta Female Seminary, at Staunton,

Va., where Miss Mary Alcorn is adding

the finishing touches to her education,

begin to-day and close on the 27th, when she will return home and be gladly welcomed by her scores of friends.

AFTER an absence of four months, during which he traveled through most of the States of the Union, Mr. T. E. Walton arrived home Wednesday morning,

apparently much improved in health.

He is well pleased with California, but thinks it is overrated so far as climate is concerned.

CITY AND VICINITY.

PLANTS of all kinds for sale by Mr.

Newland.

FRESH FISH Wednesdays and Satu-

days. M. F. Elkin.

BIRD CAGES, flower baskets, etc., at Higgins &amp; McKinney's.

ICE-COLD soda water, the best in the country, at W. B. McRoberts'.

A LARGE and varied assortment of sun-
•••••

mer millinery just received at Courts &amp;

Wray's.

FRESH supply of ready-mixed paints,

durability and quality guaranteed to be first-class. W. B. McRoberts.

MR. G. D. SMILEY was yesterday sworn in as a magistrate in this county to fill the vacancy occasioned by the resignation of Squire Ellis, who has been appointed storekeeper and gauger.The body of the colored boy, Major Hays, was found under a sand bar below Faulkner's mill-dam Wednesday, nearly a week after he was drowned. A leg and arm was exposed, but the rest of the body was entirely covered and had bleached to a perfect whiteness.Some ten couples of the young people gathered at Pink Cottage, the home of the Misses Wray, Tuesday evening, and partook of the hospitality of those elegant young ladies. It was intended for a surprise party, but the fact that the Misses Wray had had an inkling of it did not detract in the least from the pleasure of their guests.

Emerson lime, cement and salt at Higgins &amp; McKinney's.

We have a large lot of German millet seed that we know to be pure. G. D.
Wearen, Mgr.The Masons decided Monday night
not to have the proposed celebration in June. A wise decision under the circumstances.

THE stockholders of the Hustonville

Fair are requested to meet at the Masonic Hall, in Hustonville, at 2 o'clock Saturday next, for the purpose of electing officers and attending to other business.THE midroads will sell tickets to Louisville next Tuesday and Wednesday at 11 fares for the round-trip on account of the Democratic Convention.THE stockholders of the Hustonville Fair
are requested to meet at the Masonic Hall,
in Hustonville, at 2 o'clock Saturday next,
for the purpose of electing officers and attending to other business.WHITE Sandy Anderson, a drug clerk
at Delco, was on his way to church Sunday night with a young lady, he was attacked by a woman of the town named Molly Gilpin and quite a scene ensued.Later the two met when Anderson shot
the woman twice, her corset stay alone preventing instant death. The woman claims that Anderson seduced her and that he is the father of her child shortly to be born.THE Hustonville Fair is a fixed fair.
It will be held July 2d and the two following days. D. B. Carpenter placed$200 worth of the stock here with little or no effort, as our people want their friends of the West End to hold a fair
and besides they know the investment men will prove a good one. The Hustonvillians never fail to give a good exhibition and always succeed in making the enterprise pay the stockholders.H. B. Owsley, of Chicago, announces that his book entitled "The Sketch of the Twiss Family" is about ready for the press and that those interested in it can secure copies at $2.50, which amount is more than to cover cost of publication. The book is a brief history of the family in England, the migration of Thomas Twiss to Virginia, his settlement there in about the year 1640, and a record of his descendants from that day to the present.
This embraces all the American Owsleys.

Family as completely as diligent inquiry

has been able to record.

THE Columbian Spectator says we should not judge Astor county by its
representative in the legislature and that
his bill to prohibit that county from
voting aid to railroads is his individual
act for which he will have to answer to the people. The paper characterizes the act as highly presumptuous for it is equivalent to saying that he does not consider them intelligent enough to attend to their own affairs, and he takes
it upon himself to act as their guardian.The Adair people are for the road and if it is defeated Mr. Clegg will pay the penalty for securing that end. As the bill has already passed both houses the
only show now is to induce the governor
to veto it.THE Best Boys.—The following was received from Paint Lick. It is currently
reported that the Best boys have received notice to leave the county in 15
days. The notice is said to have contained the pictures of two men hanging
in effigy with the scriptural passage, "Be ye also ready" "your time here is short." The boys say they propose to stay if they
lose their lives, which is not at all likely
if they conduct themselves properly. The
general impression throughout the community is that it is a put up job, but of course this is only supposition, as they may have received it. When the 15 days
which they claim was allowed them to
wind up their business has passed, the
people can better judge as to the genuineness of the article.THE Best Boys.—The following was received from Paint Lick. It is currently
reported that the Best boys have received notice to leave the county in 15
days. The notice is said to have contained the pictures of two men hanging
in effigy with the scriptural passage, "Be
ye also ready" "your time here is short." The
boys say they propose to stay if they
lose their lives, which is not at all likely
if they conduct themselves properly. The
general impression throughout the community is that it is a put up job, but of
course this is only supposition, as they
may have received it. When the 15 days
which they claim was allowed them to
wind up their business has passed, the
people can better judge as to the genuineness of the article.THE Columbia Spectator says we should not judge Astor county by its
representative in the legislature and that
his bill to prohibit that county from
voting aid to railroads is his individual
act for which he will have to answer to
the people. The paper characterizes the
act as highly presumptuous for it is
equivalent to saying that he does not
consider them intelligent enough to attend to their own affairs, and he takes
it upon himself to act as their guardian.The Adair people are for the road and if it is defeated Mr. Clegg will pay the penalty for securing that end. As the
bill has already passed both houses the
only show now is to induce the governor
to veto it.THE Best Boys.—The following was
received from Paint Lick. It is currently
reported that the Best boys have received notice to leave the county in 15
days. The notice is said to have contained the pictures of two men hanging
in effigy with the scriptural passage, "Be
ye also ready" "your time here is short." The
boys say they propose to stay if they
lose their lives, which is not at all likely
if they conduct themselves properly. The
general impression throughout the community is that it is a put up job, but of
course this is only supposition, as they
may have received it. When the 15 days
which they claim was allowed them to
wind up their business has passed, the
people can better judge as to the genu-
ineness of the article.THE Best Boys.—The following was received from Paint Lick. It is currently
reported that the Best boys have received notice to leave the county in 15
days. The notice is said to have contained the pictures of two men hanging
in effigy with the scriptural passage, "Be
ye also ready" "your time here is short." The
boys say they propose to stay if they
lose their lives, which is not at all likely
if they conduct themselves properly. The
general impression throughout the community is that it is a put up job, but of
course this is only supposition, as they
may have received it. When the 15 days
which they claim was allowed them to
wind up their business has passed, the
people can better judge as to the genu-
ineness of the article.THE Best Boys.—The following was received from Paint Lick. It is currently
reported that the Best boys have received notice to leave the county in 15
days. The notice is said to have contained the pictures of two men hanging
in effigy with the scriptural passage, "Be
ye also ready" "your time here is short." The
boys say they propose to stay if they
lose their lives, which is not at all likely
if they conduct themselves properly. The
general impression throughout the community is that it is a put up job, but of
course this is only supposition, as they
may have received it. When the 15 days
which they claim was allowed them to
wind up their business has passed, the
people can better judge as to the genu-
ineness of the article.THE Best Boys.—The following was received from Paint Lick. It is currently
reported that the Best boys have received notice to leave the county in 15
days. The notice is said to have contained the pictures of two men hanging
in effigy with the scriptural passage, "Be
ye also ready" "your time here is short." The
boys say they propose to stay if they
lose their lives, which is not at all likely
if they conduct themselves properly. The
general impression throughout the community is that it is a put up job, but of
course this is only supposition, as they
may have received it. When the 15 days
which they claim was allowed them to
wind up their business has passed, the
people can better judge as to the genu-
ineness of the article.THE Best Boys.—The following was received from Paint Lick. It is currently
reported that the Best boys have received notice to leave the county in 15
days. The notice is said to have contained the pictures of two men hanging
in effigy with the scriptural passage, "Be
ye also ready" "your time here is short." The
boys say they propose to stay if they
lose their lives, which is not at all likely
if they conduct themselves properly. The
general impression throughout the community is that it is a put up job, but of
course this is only supposition, as they
may have received it. When the 15 days
which they claim was allowed them to
wind up their business has passed, the
people can better judge as to the genu-
ineness of the article.THE Best Boys.—The following was received from Paint Lick. It is currently
reported that the Best boys have received notice to leave the county in 15
days. The notice is said to have contained the pictures of two men hanging
in effigy with the scriptural passage, "Be
ye also ready" "your time here is short." The
boys say they propose to stay if they
lose their lives, which is not at all likely
if they conduct themselves properly. The
general impression throughout the community is that it is a put up job, but of
course this is only supposition, as they
may have received it. When the 15 days
which they claim was allowed them to
wind up their business has passed, the
people can better judge as to the genu-
ineness of the article.THE Best Boys.—The following was received from Paint Lick. It is currently
reported that the Best boys have received notice to leave the county in 15
days. The notice is said to have contained the pictures of two men hanging
in effigy with the scriptural passage, "Be
ye also ready" "your time here is short." The

